

Electrolytes

The sport of greyhound racing is well known for explosive power, speed and endurance. In order for the greyhound to perform at their best when it really counts, it is important that optimum nutrients and fluids are available. Greyhounds are expected to perform in intense bursts and often dehydration can be overlooked, which ultimately can be a deciding factor between top finishers in an event. Dehydration can take a serious toll on the energy and mental focus of the greyhound when in competition. Big Dog "Electrolyte" supplement may be included in the greyhound's daily diet to assist in supplying essential mineral salts, required before and after exercise.
